

HOW DOES THE UNION WORK?

Laborers' International Union of North America, Local #942

You are the Union!

- When you sign up, find out who represents your contract
- Ask as many questions as you need to
- Ask for your Contract
- Read your Contract
- Attend Union Meetings

Union Administration

Laborers' Local 942 is run by its Business Manager. The Business Manager derives all of their authority/responsibilities from our Local Union Constitution, which can be found here. They direct all of the staff to conduct the day-to-day affairs of the Local Union. The current Business Manager is Scott Eickholt, contact information below. This is an elected position during each three year election cycle.

Executive Board

The Executive Board is comprised of seven members of Laborers' Local 942. They include the President, Vice-President, Recording Secretary, Business Manager, and three at-large members. All of these members also serve as board members for the Building Association and the Alaska Laborers' Political and Education Committee (ALPEC). These are all elected positions that members of Local 942 vote on every three years.

The Executive Board, Building Association, and the Alaska Laborers' Political and Education Committee are led by the President of the Local. Currently the President of the Local is Jacob Howdeshell, contact information below.

"I think organized labor is a necessary part of democracy. Organized labor is the only way to have fair distribution of wealth."

- Dolores Huerta

Who can help?

Business Representatives: are your direct connection to the Local for all issues related to contract enforcement, jurisdiction, and all other job related issues. They interact with the supervision and/or management of your employer or contract.

Office Staff: are very helpful with questions regarding your dues and other fees, assisting with registration on out-of-work lists, as well as information regarding benefits that are specific to the contract that you are working under. These range from Medical coverage, which includes vision, dental, and other medical coverages to issues related to our legal coverage, if applicable.

Contacts:

Office: P:907-456-4584 F:907-452-6285

Scott Eickholt: seickholt@local942.net or 907-322-7268